A Quality Reprint of the James L. Swauger Book

Petroglyphs of Ohio

In Hard Back with Dust Cover

For each of fifty-six locations, Dr. Swauger provides maps, photographs and line drawings, a summary of historical accounts, and discussion of the figures involved, their possible significance, and methods of creation. Based on comparative studies and interpretation of site records, Swauger suggests that the majority of Native American petroglyphs in Ohio were created between A.D. 1200 and 1750. Such evidence also enables Swauger to isolate numerous later rock carvings, some of which masquerade as Native American, and advance theories as to their origin.
