has produced a welcome addition to the 1920 description of the Slavic manuscripts in the National Library at Plovdiv by Conev, comprising 39 mss and fragments + handwritten marginalia in 7 early imprints:

He has also produced, in collaboration with dr AKSINIA DŽUROVA, a comprehensive description of the Slavic manuscripts at the Pontificio Istituto Orientale at Rome, which hopes to publish in one of its next issues.

BG: SOFIA

dr JORDAN ZAIMOV
Institut za bălgarski ezik na BAN has produced, in collaboration with MARIO CAPALDO (Rome), the first volume of a major series of text editions (cf. ПОЛАТА КЪНГОПИСЬНАТА - 93-95): the first part of the Codex Suprasliensis, comprising an introduction, a comprehensive bibliography, a table of contents and the entries 1-23 in facsimile, transcription and Greek source text (where available).

The edition could almost be called definitive, were it not that the editors did not take into account the data of the 16th century apograph of the codex, KIEV, CBAN, Mak.117p., which preserves the text of some of the folia now lacking.

has organized an Association des Amis de la Gazette du livre médiéval (address as above, postal account nr. 40 37 926 Basel), which endeavours to publish, in collaboration with noted codicologists from various countries, a biannual bulletin on the study of the medieval book in its most general sense:

‘Gazette du livre médiéval’ 1 (Autumn 1982), 2 (Spring 1983)

Both issues are available free of charge from the publishers:

Editions CEMI
B.P. 254
75227 PARIS CEDEX 05

The contents are marked by short, highly stimulating articles on topics of general interest, written from interdisciplinary and practical points of view (so far, all in French, but other languages are not excluded). Rubrics on Reading Notes, Colloquia and Seminars, Bibliography, Current Projects and Library News complete the contents of this publication which we should like to recommend to the attention of all colleagues: it seems to us that this bulletin could become a most important instrument for both interdisciplinary and intercultural cross-fertilization. We sincerely hope that editors and publishers will find the means to continue its publication, and urge all colleagues to give their financial support to the Association.
