ELECTRICALS

The first of the winter lectures under auspices of A. I. E. E. was given by C. R. Kraiglow of the Ebinger Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio. His topic was, "Human Engineering in Industry."

The seniors have just turned in their character analysis reports. This stunt is one of the Electricals' "scoops" and consists of a questionnaire upon which each member of the class grades every other member of the class on points of ability, tact, management, adaptability, personality, etc. The system is not infallible, as is shown, for example, by a similar test given several years ago at Dartmouth College, in which Cal Coolidge was near the bottom of a list supposed to indicate those who would succeed in life. It is highly interesting, however, to be given a chance to "see ourselves as others see us."

Professor C. A. Wright, on leave of absence this quarter, is at Vicksburg, Mississippi. He will resume his duties in the spring quarter.

FREDERICK V. HUNT, '25.

Bill Jones, the constable, received a circular showing six different photographs of a man wanted for murder. Two days later he wired the Chief of Police: "Have five of the men. Am going after the sixth tonight."

BUSTED ROMANCE

It was in the picturesque mountains of Virginia the two sportsmen had chosen to spend their vacation, in pursuit of the speckled beauties so plentiful in the mountain streams.

They had hardly finished pitching their tent, when they were startled to see standing nearby a beautiful girl. To these two sophisticated sons of the city, she seemed a veritable wood nymph. Her features were perfect, eyes wide and blue, nose arched, with a suggestion of good breeding, cheeks smooth and soft looking, with hint of peach-blow coloring, lips crimson velvet, and hair a delightful auburn, through which the sunlight glimmered. And the face not all—a simple homespun garment covered her lithe body with a suggestion of chastity and innocence.

Demurely she gazed at them from the depths of her blue eyes, and then, shyly standing on one slender bare foot, she asked: "Hain't nary one of ye got eny chawin' tobakker, is ye?"—Moonshine.
