Marc Warren was appointed as Deputy Chief Counsel for Operations at the Federal Aviation Administration in November 2007. He assists the Chief Counsel in overseeing all aspects of the FAA's legal activities with special focus on nationwide enforcement, airports and environmental, personnel and labor law, and Regional and Center Counsel office activities.

Prior to his appointment, Warren served in the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General's Corps as the Special Assistant to the Judge Advocate General and as the Staff Judge Advocate (senior attorney) for Combined Joint Task Force 7/Multi-National Forces in Iraq, V Corps in Iraq and Germany, and the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault). In this capacity, Warren was the top legal advisor to Lt. Gen. Ricardo Sanchez, commander of coalition forces in Iraq in 2003-04, the year the insurgency took root and began its counterattack.

Warren was also the legal advisor for the world-wide activities of the Joint Special Operations Command, Regimental Judge Advocate for the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, and served in numerous other assignments as a Judge Advocate in the United States, Germany, Grenada, Bosnia, Kuwait, and Iraq.
