Miles Hewstone is Professor of Social Psychology and Director of the Oxford Centre for the Study of Intergroup Conflict at Oxford University.

His research interests include attribution theory, social cognition, social influence, stereotyping, intergroup relations, and intergroup conflict. His work focuses on the reduction of intergroup conflict via intergroup contact, stereotype change, and crossed categorization. Currently, he is working on a project titled "Cross-Community Contact, Sectarian Attitudes, and Forgiveness in Northern Ireland."

Hewstone's books include Understanding Attitudes to the European Community: A Social Psychological Study in Four Member States (Cambridge University Press, 1986); Causal Attribution: From Cognitive Processes to Collective Beliefs (Blackwell, 1989); Contact and Conflict in Intergroup Encounters (edited with R. Brown; Blackwell, 1986); and Stereotypes and Stereotyping (ed. with C.N. Macrae and C. Stangor; Guilford, 1996).

He is also widely published in journals such as the European Review of Social Psychology, Annual Review of Psychology, Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, Journal of Experimental Social Psychology, and Political Psychology.
