

Miles Hewstone, Professor of Social Psychology and Director of the Center for the Study of Intergroup Conflict at Oxford University, spoke on February 9, 2009, about "Living Apart Together: Segregation vs. Mixing as Sources of or Solutions for Intergroup Conflict."

Hewstone spoke to a crowd of about 50 people at the Mershon Center about intergroup contact and relations between Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland.

Miles Hewstone (right) responds to a question posed by Peter Mansoor (seated center) about intergroup contact and desegregation in Baghdad, Iraq.

Miles Hewstone (left) speaks with Pamela Paxton (right), Associate Professor of Sociology at The Ohio State University, about Paxton's research on social capital.