

Mino Moallem, Professor of Gender and Women's Studies at the University of California-Berkeley, spoke on "Political and Cultural Citizenship: The Making and Unmaking of the Nation in Iran" on February 24 at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies. This event was part of the Women in Development Speaker Series.

Mino Moallem (left) speaks with Alam Payind (right), director of the Middle East Studies Center at The Ohio State University. They spoke about Moallem's most recent book, Between Warrior Brother and Veiled Sister: Islamic Fundamentalism and the Cultural Politics of Patriarchy in Iran.