

The Mershon Center for International Security Studies and the Institute for Collaborative Research and Public Humanities co-sponsored a panel discussion on "Afghanistan: The Choices" held in Saxbe Auditorium, Moritz College of Law, on November 9, 2009.

Panelists included (left to right) Fred Andrie, Institute for Collaborative Research and Public Humanities; former WOSU Open Line radio talk show host; Richard Herrmann, Social and Behavioral Sciences Distinguished Professor of Political Science; Alam Payind, Director of the Middle East Studies Center; John Mueller, Woody Hayes Chair of National Security Studies; and Peter Mansoor, Gen. Raymond E. Mason Jr. Chair in Military History.

(Left to right) Alam Payind, Director, Middle East Studies Center; John Mueller, Woody Hayes Chair of National Security Studies; and Peter Mansoor, Gen. Raymond E. Mason Jr. Chair in Military History listen during discussion of "Afghanistan: The Choices" on November 9, 2009.

Alam Payind, director of the Middle East Studies Center, answers a question during "Afghanistan: The Choices" as other panelists listen. Almost 300 people attended the event.

Peter Mansoor (seated right), Gen. Raymond E. Mason Chair in Military History, takes a question during "Afghanistan: The Choices" on November 9, 2009. Mason was previously executive officer for Gen. David Petraeus in Iraq.

Panelists for "Afghanistan: The Choices" included (left to right) Peter Mansoor, Gen. Raymond E. Mason Jr. Chair in Military History; Alam Payind, Director, Middle East Studies Center; Fred Andrle, Institute for Collaborative Research and Public Humanities; former WOSU Open Line host; John Mueller, Woody Hayes Chair of National Security Studies; and Richard Herrmann, Social and Behavioral Sciences Distinguished Professor of Political Science.