Randall Schweller, Professor of Political Science at The Ohio State University, introduces Charles Kupchan as the first speaker in the National Security Speaker Series at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies. He is showcasing Kupchan's book, The Vulnerability of Empire, Schweller's favorite of his works.
Charles Kupchan, professor of international affairs in the School of Foreign Service and Government Department at Georgetown University, Randall Schweller, professor of political science at The Ohio State University, and John Mueller, Woody Hayes Chair of National Security Studies at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies and professor of political science at The Ohio State University, share a laugh after the event.
Over 60 faculty, graduate students, and undergraduate students attended the talk by Chales Kupchan about peace. Kupchan discussed when and how adversaries are able to find their way from enmity to amity. He drew on a wide range of historical cases to explore the sources of rapprochement and expose prevalent myths about the causes of peace.
Charles Kupchan speaks to an audience at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies on Wednesday, March 30th at 3:30 PM. His talk title was "Enemies Into Friends: How Peace Breaks Out".
Charles Kupchan is professor of international affairs in the School of Foreign Service and Government Department at Georgetown University. He is also Whitney H. Shepardson Senior Fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations.
Joshua Kertzer, PhD candidate in Political Science at The Ohio State University asked Charles Kupchan a question during his talk at the Mershon Center.