T.X. Hammes is a senior research fellow with the Institute for National Strategic Studies at National Defense University and a retired colonel in the U.S. Marine Corps. He has lectured widely and published on insurgency, irregular warfare, and future conflict.

Hammes was commissioned from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1975. During his 30 years in the Marine Corps, he served at all levels in the operating forces, and participated in stabilization operations in Somalia and Iraq. He attended the Marine Corps Command and Staff College and the Canadian National Defense College. He also spent a year on a research fellowship with the Mershon Center.

He is author of The Sling and the Stone: On War in the Twenty-First Century (Zenith Press, 2006), as well as numerous articles and opinion pieces.

He holds a BS in Operations Analysis from the U.S. Naval Academy and an MSt and DPhil in Modern History from Oxford University.
