FIRST TERM—June 22 to July 25

*Constitutional Law. Eight credit hours, eight hours each week. Mr. Strong.
A study of American constitutional law as developed through an examination of the jurisdiction, powers, techniques and functions of the Supreme Court of the United States. The greater part of the course is devoted to the functions of the Court in umpiring federal-state and state-state relationships and in balancing governmental and private interests. Consideration of these functions involves the study of the basic constitutional doctrines of due process, police power, full faith and credit, obligation of contract, privileges and immunities, equal protection, inter-governmental immunities, commerce among the states, and separation of powers. Although emphasis is thus upon federal constitutional law, similarities in constitutional doctrine together with occasional reference to doctrines unique to the States, serve to provide as well a background training in state constitutional law. Students who enroll for only the first term of the summer session will be given an examination in this course at the end of that term and receive only four hours credit; other students will be examined on the entire course at the end of the second term. This course is open to beginning law students and other persons without law training.
Dowling, Cases on Constitutional Law, 2nd Edition.

Income Taxation. Three credit hours, six hours each week. Mr. Lavery.

The Federal Income Tax: History and constitutionality of the tax; gross income; deductions; net income, exemptions; exclusions; credits; accounting methods; capital gains and losses; computation of the tax; income tax procedure; the taxpayer's remedies; the excess-profits tax. Casebook to be announced.

Labor Law. Four credit hours, eight hours each week. Mr. Mathews.

This course consists of two major areas. The first portion concerns devices to encourage unionization, such as economic pressure in terms of strikes, picketing, blacklisting and boycotts; devices to hinder unionization, such as company dominated unions, lock-outs, blacklisting and "yellow-dog" contracts; anti-injunction acts and the nature of relief permissible thereunder; labor and the anti-trust laws; trade agreements and inter-union disputes. The second portion is devoted exclusively to a study of the National Labor Relations Act. Under this head are included the determination of representatives for collective bargaining, appropriate bargaining unit, conduct of elections and certification; the five unfair labor practices, remedial power of the Board, such as disestablishment of dominated unions, reinstatement, back pay, abrogation of trade agreements and various other cease and desist orders; nature of a fair hearing; judicial review and enforcement of Board orders.

Casebook, "Cases on Labor Law," by Alexander H. Frey (1941).

*Legal Method and Personal Property. Three credit hours, six hours each week. Mr. Rose.

Wherein cases on Personal Property are used both to present the substantive law of that subject (possession, finders, lien, pledge and acquisition of ownership) and to illustrate various philosophies of law, the use of judicial logic and the doctrine of precedent. This course is open to beginning law students and other persons without law training. Bigelow's Cases on Personal Property, 2nd Edition.

Institute on Public Law; July 6 to 11

During this week the regular classes in Constitutional Law, Labor Law, and Taxation will recess so that all students may attend the lectures on Administrative Law, The Development of Federal Regulation, Income Taxation, and Labor Law which will be given by Dr. Roscoe Pound, Dr. George W. Rightmire, Professor Thomas C. Lavery, and Judge J. Warren Madden.

SECOND TERM—July 27 to August 28

*Constitutional Law. Mr. Strong.

The portion of Constitutional Law covered in its first term is a prerequisite. (For description of the course, see above, First Term).

*Criminal Law. Four credit hours, eight hours each week. Mr. Lattin.

A consideration of the general principles underlying crimes and criminal punishment, with a study of the more important crimes. This course is open to beginning students and other persons without law training. Casebook to be announced.

*Military Law. Three credit hours, six hours each week.

diction; court-martial; and soldiers' and sailors' civil rights. This course is open to beginning students and other persons without law training.

Quasi Contracts. Three credit hours, six hours each week. Mr. Vanneman.

Reformation, rescission, and restitution, at law and in equity; remedies for fraudulent and honest misrepresentation: benefits conferred by mistake of fact or law; benefits conferred under contracts which have been partially performed; benefits voluntarily conferred; benefits conferred under duress.

Casebook, Durfee and Dawson, Cases on Restitution.

ADMISSION

(a) Enrollment for credit:

(1) Students in good standing at The Ohio State University College of Law may register for the summer session and receive credit toward a degree. Beginning law students must comply with the regular requirements for admission which are administered through the University Entrance Board. Students who are not enrolled in the College of Law and who wish to take courses for credit toward the degree of some other College at this University must comply with the regular requirements for admission which are administered through the University Entrance Board.

(2) Transient Students: A student in good standing in any law school having entrance requirements of two or more years of pre-law work, and who expects to return to his former college, will be admitted as a transient student. His registration will terminate at the end of the Summer Quarter, and his credits will be transferred to his own institution. He will not be required to submit a full transcript of credits, but must present to the University Entrance Board a statement from his Dean or Registrar that he is in good standing and that his work will receive credit in his own college. If at the end of the Summer Quarter he wishes to remain in this University, he must then secure a complete transcript of credits and apply to the University Entrance Board for readmission.

(b) Enrollment not for credit: Legal Institute

Members of the Ohio Bar and other interested persons will be permitted to enroll in certain designated courses and in the Institute on Public Law without matriculation fee and with special registration (tuition) fees; see Fees, below. Persons so registering will receive no credit toward a degree. Registration may be made by addressing a letter of application to the Dean, College of Law, and enclosing a check payable to The Ohio State University for the appropriate fee. Subjects which are open to this type of registration are Income Taxation, Labor Law, Institute on Public Law, Military Law, and Criminal Law.

FEES

(a) Enrollment for credit: A registration fee of $20.00 for residents of Ohio and $45.00 for non-residents is charged for each term of the summer session. In addition a matriculation fee of $15.00 is charged for first admission to the University.

(b) Enrollment not for credit: During the first term, the fee for the Institute on Public Law is $10.00; for the Institute on Public Law and either Labor Law or Income Taxation the fee is $15.00; for the three courses the fee is $20.00. During the second term the fee for either Criminal Law or Military Law is $12.00; or $20.00 for both courses.

If additional information is desired, write to the Dean of the College of Law, The Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.
