Paul Beck, Distinguished Professor Emeritus of Social and Behavioral Sciences, welcomed Mershon affiliates to "Voting Amidst Economic Crisis: Southern Europe in a Comparative Perspective," held October 19, 2014, at the Mershon Center. The event presented an analysis of data from national election surveys following the most recent and previous Southern European elections, with the contrasting analysis of voting behavior in times of economic normalcy based upon 19 elections in 15 countries on five continents.
José Ramón Montero (left), professor of political science at the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid (UAM), and Richard Gunther, professor emeritus of political science at The Ohio State University, presented “Voting Amidst Economic Crisis: Southern Europe in a Comparative Perspective” at the Mershon Center. The presentation outlined the latest research for the Comparative National Elections Project, one of the largest surveys in the world of voting behavior and mediation.
