

Foreword

This volume of the Proceedings is the first to emerge under the editorial auspices of our new associate editor of the Proceedings. We all owe Karen Moranski a debt of gratitude for her willingness to take on the job of assisting Mel Storm and working with him to ensure that the Proceedings appear on a regular basis. Her efforts have resulted in another impressive volume for our series.

As Karen observes in her editorial note, this volume is also the last under our initial set of editorial procedures. In the future, the title of our journal will be Publications, and other editorial changes will be made to broaden the scope for submissions. Most important of all, we intend to publish volumes in the series annually. Through the effort of our editors, the Proceedings have been so warmly received that the Council has recognized the need for a more frequent publication. Members of the Association will thus get an added benefit for their dues.

As in previous forwards, I must stress that the success of this series depends on the willingness of members to participate. Mel Storm and Karen Moranski are of course our leaders in this activity. Without their dedication, the publication would not exist. However, as Karen notes, we must also recognize the contributions of our reviewers and the authors. Numerous members of our Association have contributed to the fine volume that we see here.
