OHIO STATE JOURNAL OF CRIMINAL LAW

Volume 5 Number 1 Fall 2007

SYMPOSIUM

RACIAL BLINDSIGHT AND CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Racial Blindsight: The Absurdity of Color-Blind Criminal Justice
Andrew E. Taslitz ................................................................. 1

Racial Impact Statements as a Means of Reducing Unwarranted Sentencing Disparities
Marc Mauer ........................................................................... 19

Hate Thy Neighbor: Violent Racial Exclusion and the Persistence of Segregation
Jeannine Bell ......................................................................... 47

Othello Error: Facial Profiling, Privacy, and the Suppression of Dissent
Lenese Herbert ...................................................................... 79

Race and Recalcitrance: The Miller-El Remands
Sheri Lynn Johnson .............................................................. 131

COMMENTARY SYMPOSIUM

MIRANDA AT FORTY

On the Fortieth Anniversary of the Miranda Case: Why We Needed It, How We Got It—And What Happened to It
Yale Kamisar ........................................................................ 163

The Misguided Defenses of Miranda v. Arizona
Ronald J. Allen ....................................................................... 205

“Truth Machines” and Confessions Law in the Year 2046
George C. Thomas III ............................................................. 215

Why Not a Miranda for Searches?
Gerard E. Lynch ...................................................................... 233
COMMENTARIES

White Collar Crime: A Letter from the Future
Ellen S. Podgor

TERM PAPERS: SUPREME COURT '06 – '07

Panetti v. Quarterman: Mental Illness, the Death Penalty, and Human Dignity
Richard J. Bonnie

Panetti v. Quarterman: Is there a “Rational Understanding” of the Supreme Court’s Eighth Amendment Jurisprudence?
Carol S. Steiker

REVIEWS

On the Moral Structure of White Collar Crime
Mitchell N. Berman

Felon Disenfranchisement and Democracy in the Late Jim Crow Era
Gabriel J. Chin

STUDENT NOTE

A Defense Bar: The “Proof of Innocence” Requirement in Criminal Malpractice Claims
Kevin Bennardo