B. Sample Book Entry

This textbook focuses on the use of consensual approaches, including negotiation and mediation, in the resolution of international private and public interest conflicts. This book emphasizes the use of consensual approaches in global conflicts because of the limitations of domestic judicial processes and the lack of a binding international public process.

C. Sample Article Entry

This article proposes a solution to the conflict between collaborative law and the professional rules of ethics in the form of a new Model Rule. In addition to presenting the text for the new Model Rule, the article explores the value of professional ethical rules, surveys collaborative law practices, and examines the central ethical concerns in collaborative law practice, as well as attempting to provide more control over the practice.

II. HOW TO USE THE BIBLIOGRAPHY ISSUE

1. Refer to the Subject Heading Outline found on page 665 and select the area of alternative dispute resolution that you wish to research.

2. After selecting an area, note the search term to the right of the subject heading. Use the Index Number (located to the left of the heading) to find the search term in the index section entitled Article and Book Entries by Search Terms and Index Numbers beginning on page 747.

3. Under each search term, authors writing on that topic have been arranged alphabetically. The complete entry can be located using the author’s last name, or the journal name if there is no author, in the book and article index sections beginning on pages 669 and 673, respectively.

4. A bibliography entry may contain multiple search terms; therefore, use the Subject Heading Outline found on page 665 to locate the corresponding Index Number for an additional search term.
