FOREWORD

Background: The Agricultural Finance Center of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology at The Ohio State University is conducting a global research project on agricultural credit in developing countries. The project is being conducted under a three-year contract between the United States Agency for International Development and the Research Foundation of The Ohio State University.

Many different agricultural credit institutions and programs are in operation in the world. Some are new, some have been in existence for long periods of time. Some are successful and have made significant contributions to agriculture and general economic development; others have been less successful. Still others have been formed, failed and gone out of existence. Through these diverse operations, a great deal of experience with agricultural credit has been gained. Much of the first year's work on the research project has been directed to assembly, compilation and analysis of materials reflecting and reporting upon this accumulated experience.

To handle these materials and make them available for use, an agricultural credit reference facility has been established in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology of The Ohio State University. A substantial, but still far from complete, body of materials has been assembled and classified under the direction of S. T. Stickley, with W. G. Hoerger, R. A. Bailey and other members of the research staff. While a broad range of supplemental publications and unpublished data are included in the collection, this bibliography is restricted to a listing of those items directly related to agricultural credit.

An active acquisition program is being carried on with the objective of completing and keeping current the inventory of relevant world-wide agricultural credit information. Suggestions for additions are solicited and will be appreciated.

Organization: Materials are grouped by the regions of the world. Countries are listed alphabetically. For each country, materials have been grouped under the following headings:

Seminars: Documents produced at conferences, seminars and workshops.

Reports: Documents produced by technicians of international agencies, consultant teams, and by groups or individuals from outside the agency or country.

Institutions: Annual reports and other materials on specific institutions performing agricultural credit services.
