GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

SUBMISSION RULES

All contributions must be submitted in English. For authors whose native language is not English, it is highly recommended to check the article for linguistic correctness with the help of a professional copy-editor.

Any manuscript submitted to ASK must be an original work that has not been published before. ASK considers unethical the practice of simultaneous submission of the manuscript to another publication, neither in English nor in another language. All major findings of the manuscript that have been made by the authors themselves, or by their collaborators, and that has been or will be published elsewhere must be clearly identified and specified in a letter announcing manuscript submission to ASK.

Both ghostwriting and guest authorship¹ are regarded by ASK as unethical and the publisher is obliged by Polish law to prevent such manuscripts from appearing in their journal. In this regard, we require two statements in the letter announcing manuscript submission. First, that all parties – institutions or individuals – other than the authors of the manuscript who had significant contribution to this manuscript must be mentioned in an acknowledgement footnote or elsewhere in the manuscript. Second, that all authors had substantial contribution to this article, and no author acts as a guest.

ASK adheres to a rigorous double-blind reviewing policy and uses anonymous peer reviewers for manuscript evaluation. Remove or rewrite any text that identifies you as the author; when citing your own work, write "Kolczynska (2007) argued that...", but do not write "I argued that (Kolczynska 2007)..." Remove any identification of you and your affiliation from the computer file (in the file name, the file's and document's properties, history of usage etc.). All contributions are initially reviewed by the Editor and only those that meet editorial and scientific standards, and follow ASK's scope and aims, will be processed for external review.

The author must prepare a manuscript for blinded review, which consists of two separate documents. The first document is the text of the article. This document for blinded review must not include the title page, authors' names or affiliations, or any other identifying information. This document for reviewing must start with a title, an abstract with minimum 150 to maximum 250 words, followed by 3 to 6 key words. The body of this document should consist of the following parts, each starting from the title page: the text of the manuscript, footnotes, references, appendices, tables, charts and graphs. The latter three are optional.

The second document is the manuscript's cover page containing the title, author's name and institution must be enclosed as a separate file. A footnote to the title page containing the acknowledgments, the names and numbers of research grants and any other data that could be used to identify the author must also be placed only in this file. A brief, one-paragraph biographical note must be enclosed for each author describing their current institutional affiliation, research interests, and last publications. Biographical notes must be part of the file containing cover page information.

The authors are responsible for copyright permission when reproducing materials published elsewhere.

Ask: Research and Methods is an open access journal co-published by The Ohio State University Libraries and the Institute of Philosophy and Sociology, Polish Academy of Sciences under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives license, to allow for certain types of reuse without permission. Authors submitting their work to this journal must agree to apply a CC BY-NC-ND license upon publication.

After publication, the authors receive one copy of the journal.

ADDRESS FOR MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

All manuscripts must be submitted electronically to the Editorial Advisor of ASK (AskResearchandMethods@gmail.com). An announcement letter addressed to the Editor in Chief that requests that the manuscript be considered for publication must be electronically signed by one of the authors and must accompany the electronic files, following the requirements specified above. The announcement letter may be in the body of an e-mail. No paper copy is required.
