Illi-Buck Retained By Ohio State

THE HISTORY of the Illibuck—the wooden turtle trophy for which University of Illinois and Ohio State University football teams compete each year—began back in 1925, when the Illini and Buckeye junior men's honorary societies decided that it would be a good idea to inaugurate a trophy to commemorate their historic but friendly rivalry in the annual game.

A live turtle—dubbed "Illibuck" to combine both the Illini and Buckeye names—was first chosen as a suitable trophy, partly because it was supposed that the marine reptile would display suitable longevity. The trophy's originators envisioned the same turtle 50 years hence, hoary but hearty, with the scores of 50 historic Illini-Buckeye games carved on his back.

After the 1925 game, Illibuck's first, the trophy returned to Illinois along with the famous "Red" Grange, who had played his last game in Columbus that year. Illinois had won 14-9.

However, after the wear and tear of a few years traveling back and forth between games in a suitcase and spending the rest of the year in the basement of a fraternity house, Illibuck quietly expired. He was replaced, more pessimistically, with a wooden replica—a faithful reproduction of its live predecessor in his prime. Since the untimely end of Illibuck I, the teams have competed for a succession of wooden replicas, of which the present is the fourth.

Although Illibuck has gone back and forth between Champaign and Columbus many times through the years, he has spent 22 of these years at Ohio State and only 10 at Illinois. In fact, there was one period when the Bucks retained the trophy for 11 years straight, winning all games between 1935 and 1945 inclusive.

The ceremony of transferring Illibuck to his new owner traditionally occurs during the half-time of the annual game. Members of Buckeye and Dipper, the Ohio State junior men's honorary, and Schem, the Illinois honorary (the latter draped in their Indian blankets), parade out on the field and solemnly pass the peace pipe around to participants. Illibuck is then given over to the winner of the previous year's game, or retained, if the team has won twice in a row.

In case of a tie, as occurred in 1951 (0-0), Illibuck remains in possession of the previous year's winner. Ohio State has won the last three games from Illinois.

Ohio State Recognizes Varsity "O"

DR. JAMES R. HULL
President

DALE R. PFLAUMER
President
Student Varsity "O"

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY today recognizes members of its Varsity "O" Association, a group representing hundreds of Buckeye athletes and managers who, since Ohio State's first football team in 1890, have promoted the high standards of intercollegiate competition.

Before the turn of the century, only football, baseball and basketball were represented in the Buckeye sports field. Since then, 12 activities have been added and channeled into Varsity "O." These include track, golf, tennis, swimming, cross country, polo, rifle shooting, fencing, wrestling, gymnastics, soccer and lacrosse.

Some 4,000 men have worn the Varsity "O," of whom 3,300 still are living. Approximately one-half of this number remain active in university and athletic affairs. Until recently, less than 50 letters were awarded each year in all sports. Now, the figure runs well over 200 for each school year.

The list of Varsity "O" men who have achieved all-American distinction is endless. Football, baseball, basketball, swimming or track men have contributed almost annually to this select group. Three Ohio State all-American football players have received the most-coveted of honors, the Heisman Memorial award. They are Leslie Horvath, Victor Janowicz and Howard (Hopalong) Cassady.

The Football Hall of Fame has honored Charles (Chic) Harley and Wesley (Wes) Fesler, both three-time all-Americans.

Varsity "O" was organized as an association in 1903 as a means of inspiring Ohio State athletics, a goal long since achieved. The late Dr. Roy D. McClure has been credited as founder. A native of Columbus, he later was superintendent of the Ford Hospital in Detroit for many years.

The University of Illinois

THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS came into existence because the people of the state demanded that higher education should be available to more than a favored few. It opened March 2, 1868, with 50 students and a faculty of three. Now enrollment totals some 28,000 and the staff, on a full-time basis, 8,800.

Plant and equipment now are valued at $140,000,000.

However, much as the University has grown in size, it has grown more in concept and activities. The kind of a university that Illinois is today was unknown when it opened in 1868. There were distinguished faculties then as now, but no such large student bodies existed. There were nowhere such gigantic laboratories as are on the Illinois campus today in which scholars and investigators turn the light of science on many problems, from agriculture to atoms.

The University carries on three great functions: teaching, research, and service.

It teaches in the liberal arts and in the professional fields at both undergraduate and at advanced levels. The center of its work, and its administrative offices are on the main campus at Urbana-Champaign, where the University opened in 1868. Here are 14 colleges and schools, and with 19,000 students.

By the union of the many and various fields of interest and effort in one great university, teaching, research, and services all benefit. A student at Illinois can select at one time courses from fields as distant as fine arts and engineering, agriculture and music, and all in one institution can fit his college work to meet his own personal special abilities and plans. He can work under faculty members whose names are widely known in their fields.

Likewise the research and student activities benefit from the union of many activities in one great university. Projects may embrace at one time fields and experts as wide apart as agriculture, engineering, and medicine. Valuable to scholars and to research alike is the great University of Illinois library, with more than 3,500,000 items in its collections. It is the largest of any state university library, and fifth among all libraries of the nation.

But the fact that the University of Illinois is large both in plant and in enrollment does not mean that the individual student is lost in it. Just as each has opportunity to fit the educational offerings of the University to his individual needs, so also can he find student activities to fit his interests, and other students who share them, whether they be athletics or stamp collecting, dramatics, publications, music, religious work, radio, or any of many others.

On its Urbana-Champaign campus the University of Illinois probably has more full-time students—young people who are away from home and in the University environment 24 hours a day—than any other educational institution. It has many agencies interested in the students outside as well as inside the classroom, and ready to help any student with his problems at any time: such agencies as the deans of students, of men, and of women; the deans and directors of the various colleges and schools; the Student Counseling Bureau; church foundations sponsored by the various denominations; the Student Employment Bureau; Division of Housing; Health Service; and McKinley student hospital.

Many students earn a part of their costs while at the University. More than 2,800 scholarships are available. Most of these scholarships provide free tuition, and many also additional sums.

Study, research, and services in the health sciences are concentrated at the University's professional units at the Illinois Medical Center on Chicago's west side—today the greatest medical center in the world. Also in that city is the University's Chicago Undergraduate Division, located on Navy Pier, and offering the first two years of college work. The University's extension courses and services spread to all parts of the state, and correspondence courses all over the world.

The University's research, like its teaching, is in almost every direction of man's efforts and interests. Research has a direct effect on teaching because the latest findings of the laboratory come direct to the classroom and with them the inspiration of science and scholarship which is constantly pushing back the frontiers of human knowledge.

Today the University's research results are being applied around the world in the medical sciences, reinforced concrete, railway and highway problems, ceramics, electronics, sound movies, cattle feeding, control of animal diseases, soybeans, corn improvement, farm accounting and records, and in many other things. Its services reach every part of the state; its publications and graduates are found everywhere.

The benefits of the research, in its findings, are of inestimable value. Traceable cash returns alone more than repay every year to Illinois citizens more than the whole cost of building, equipping, and operating the University since its opening day. Many research projects are privately financed, but the results of all are published and used for the public benefit.

Services of the University are many, ranging from help to farmers and businessmen to the Visual Aids Services which provide educational motion pictures. In these services, including such things as radio and publication, it takes information directly to the citizens, welcomes their problems, and utilizes the information gained from solving those problems for its teaching and research activities.

He quarterbacked Elgin High School to a perfect record in 1955 . . . Halfback Don Grothe knows what it's like to play on a Big Ten champion. He was a reserve on the 1953 Illini team which tied Michigan State for the conference title . . . It's not surprising that End Kent Brennecke lists Chicago Bear star Harlon Hill as his athletic ideal. Hill preceded Brennecke at Coffee High School, Florence, Ala. . . . Youngest player on Illinois' football team is Guard Denny Staub, who won't be 19 until January 18. Oldest player is Capt. Dale Smith, 26-year-old Navy veteran from Georgetown . . . Bill Offenbecher, junior quarterback who led Illinois to the famous upset victory over Michigan State last year, doesn't have to look far to see the results of his summer job. He did construction work on the new men's dormitory just north of Memorial Stadium . . . Quarterback Tom Haller last year became Illinois' first three-sport letter winner since Dwight "Dike" Eddleman. The Lockport junior lettered in basketball and baseball, as well as football, in his first year of varsity competition. Haller, Russ Martin, and Doug Wallace will report to Basketball Coach Harry Combes as soon as football season is over . . . Quarterback Bob Bronson, junior from Blue Island, won a freshman numeral in tennis two years ago . . . End Larry Stewart and Halfback Bob Mitchell are members of Leo Johnson's Illini track squad. Mitchell was a 24-foot broad jumper, and won firsts in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and low hurdles last year. Stewart broke Illinois' varsity shot put record with a toss of 54-35/8, placing sixth in the N.C.A.A. championships at University of Texas last June . . . Halfback George Rantis of Oak Park once intercepted a pass and ran it back 100 yards in a high school game—only to have the play called back because of a penalty . . . Ed Reed, halfback from New Orleans, La., is smallest player on Illinois squad. He stands only 5-8 and weighs 160 . . . Of Illinois' 20 lettermen only four are less than six feet tall . . . Guard Ken Gehler's brother, Bill, is captain of Wisconsin's 1957 football team

. . . Dejustice Coleman, sophomore halfback from Forrest City, Ark., is nicknamed "DeeDee" but doesn't know when or where he picked it up . . . End Rich Kreitling made his first appearance in Memorial Stadium a noteworthy one. In the spring Alumni-Varsity game, Kreitling intercepted one of Tom O'Connell's passes on the goal line and ran it back 100 yards for a touchdown . . . Halfback Dan Wile, Salem, lettered as a fullback in 1955, and started at that position in the season opener against California . . . Fullback Ray

Sophomore Jim Brown was an all-state fullback at Mendota in 1954. Last year Jim's brother, Bill, also made the all-state team at the same position . . . Bruce Dollahan, junior tackle, blocked extra point attempts in two consecutive games to give his Berkley, Mich. high school team victories . . . Ron Hill, junior end from Rochelle, is a nephew of Rod Fletcher, captain of Illinois' 1952 basketball team which won the Big Ten title and third place in the national collegiate tournament . . . Letterman Guard Dick Nordmeyer began his prep career at Murphysboro, then moved to Tucson, Ariz. He won a total of 14 letters at the two schools . . . Senior Bob Delaney played on two Mt. Carmel High School teams that won Chicago city championships . . . Sophomore Halfback Harold Hussung can't fail to be a success if uniform numbers mean anything. Last three players to wear Hussung's number "40" were "Dike" Eddleman, Stan Wallace, and Abe Woodson . . . Bruce Beckmann's uncle, Bill Beckmann, formerly pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals . . . Guard Ernie McMillon was a reserve on the fine DuSable High School basketball team of 1954, ranked by many as the finest ever to come out of Chicago . . . Fullback Ray Nitschke scored three touchdowns in his second game as a collegian against Iowa State in 1955 . . . Chuck Schrader, senior quarterback, played at Champaign High School under Fred Major and former Illini Quarterback Tom Stewart . . . Senior Ken Sutter was an all-state fullback at Peoria Woodruff High School, but became a letterman at center in college. He realized the lineman's dream of scoring a touchdown when he intercepted a pass and ran 12 yards to score against California in the 1956 opener . . . Bill Offenbecher got his name in Illinois' record books last year as a sophomore, for the longest touchdown pass play . . . Offenbecher tossed to Abe Woodson and Woodson's run covered 82 yards, beating the old record of 78 yards set by Tom O'Connell and "Rocky" Ryan in 1952.

“Always a Better Deal”

HAROLD R. WOOD '31, President

The Football Writers Association of America

By BERT McGRANE, Secretary-Treasurer, FWA

relations departments of the universities, coaches, conference groups and faculty leaders, have come to know each other's problems. A spirit of cooperation has eliminated most of these problems.

The Football Writers are grateful for the improved facilities provided them over the sprawling football front. Many new, up to the minute press boxes are in operation, providing the finest radio and television facilities as well as press necessities.

More new press boxes are coming.

In most cases, the sports publicity representatives of the universities work hand in hand with the Football Writers Association for the general good of football.

Ethics have been raised on both sides. More progress will be made.

Through its organization, the Association annually selects one of the most widely known of the All-America teams for publication in a national magazine.

It seeks out the big contributors to football in the smaller colleges of the land and recognizes these men with citations.

This year, for the first time, the Football Writers will select their own Coach of the Year. They name the Team of the Year and honor the top guard or tackle of the nation, the "unsung star," with their Outland Award. [1956 winner was Jim Parker of Ohio State].

Through vigilant effort on the part of committees, the writers strive to keep an eye all along the football front, where unethical practices of any type might creep in. They place high value on the game of football, and are pledged to work always toward its best interests.

Among the objectives as outlined in the original constitution of the organization are these:

To promote the best interests of football.

To encourage and recognize outstanding achievements in sportsmanship, play, coaching, sports writing, or in other fields contributing to the advancement of the game, by awarding trophies or citations.

To standardize forms and methods in the compilation of statistics.

To secure better facilities and better regulation of working conditions in the football pressboxes.

To bring together, in a closer bond of friendship, the writers of football throughout the United States.

To promote, through the mutual exchange of opinions and viewpoints and otherwise, better understanding and harmony between the football writers and those with whom they work, the coaches, the players, athletic directors, faculty representatives, publicity directors, and others.

The Football Writers Association of America has more than 16 years of existence behind it. It feels that it has justified its existence. It feels that it can be of greater service in the years ahead.

IT WAS late August, 1941, and it was hot! Football writers from across the map, in Chicago for one of the early All Star games, loafed through the steamy afternoon, awaiting the game that night.

In the Celtic Room at the Sherman Hotel one small group, eight men as we recall, touched lightly on the problems of their profession—a need for better working facilities, better relations with the coaches, ethics—things like that.

Due note was made of the fact that the writers had no concerted voice, no leadership, no vehicle with which they might work toward the improvement of "the breed."

"We ought to have a Football Writers Association," somebody said.

Then and there, on August 28, 1941, the Football Writers Association of America was born.

Eight founders there were, although their ranks have expanded greatly with the passing years.

"I just met the 200th guy who said he was present when we organized," said one of the founders after the 1957 All Star game.

What matter? The original eight has grown to a nationwide membership of approximately 800 with members in virtually every state, token representation in Canada and a chapter in Hawaii.

From the confines of the Celtic Room the name of the organization has gone far. Out of an infancy clouded with war, which took a great many of its members or potential members into service, the Football Writers Association has moved steadily ahead.

Through the leadership of the Association, public

1. Oh! come let's sing O - hi - o's praise, And songs to Al - ma Ma - ter raise;
2. These jol - ly days of price - less worth, By far the glad - dest days of earth,
3. Tho' age may dim our mem - ry's store, We'll think of hap - py days of yore,

While our hearts re-bounding thrill, With joy which death a - lone can still,
Soon will pass and we not know How dear - ly we love O - hi - o.
True to friend and frank to foe, As stur - dy sons of O - hi - o.

Sum - mer's heat or Win - ter's cold, The sea - sons pass, the years will roll:
We should strive to keep thy name Of fair re - pute and spot - less fame;
If on seas of care we roll, 'Neath blackened sky, o'er bar - ren shoal,

Time and change will sure - ly show How firm thy friend - ship— O - hi - o.
So, in col - lege halls we'll grow To love thee bet - ter— O - hi - o.
Tho'ts of thee bid dark - ness go, Dear Al - ma Ma - ter— O - hi - o.

Choose the type of lawn that best suits your needs

Good lawns start with choice seed, bursting with goodness, get up and go. Handsome, golden grain, sun-drenched as it ripened in hidden, favored valleys. Gathered from the four corners of the earth, each kind from a particular spot where grassmen find Nature extra kind. Scientifically cured, cleaned and blended by Scott's 87 years of know-how, in the world's most modern seed plant.

PICTURE Brand—a blend of finer bladed grasses that makes the elegant lawn.

FAMILY Brand—adaptable composition of strong attractive grasses . . . good looks, good wear . . . without pampering.

PLAY Brand—a blend of sturdy, broader bladed grasses. Makes a quick rugged cushion.
