

The Fight From Within

Alex Warren

You look around,
But you see nothing.
You're starting to hear voices,
It must be something.
You turn on your lights,
Just to see them blown out.
You start looking frantically,
You begin to then shout.
The doors a few steps,
Then you're free of this.
But once you get there,
You begin to notice.
The door is locked,
From the outside in.
You start to wonder,
What has happened.
Thoughts are coming,
You're out of control.
You start to shake,
And then you fall.
Now you're on the ground,
Lying paralyzed.
You don't know what's there,
Are you going to die?
Something's crawling up your leg,
You don't know what it is.
You try shaking it off,
You wonder what is this.
Now its on your face,
And you feel a sting.
Now your skins peeling off,
Like it's been turned to string.
You're still paralyzed,
But your screaming inside.
You want this to stop,
Now it's eating your side.
Your flesh almost gone,
Just a little bit to go.
Your life slowly leaving,
All that's left is your soul.
Your house is empty,
And you are now gone.
Your life is over,
And now you are done.
But wait what is this,
Your soul is not right.
And so it begins,
The fight for your next life.