

Foreword

This issue of the Publications of the Medieval Association of the Midwest has something for almost every scholarly taste. Its scope reveals that the Association continues to generate interest among scholars in a wide variety of disciplines. Interdisciplinary and multi-disciplinary studies have always been at the heart of the Medieval Association of the Midwest, and it is encouraging to see how strong and vital the tradition is today.

Remember that it is no longer necessary for papers to have been presented at a MAM conference or sponsored session to be eligible for the Publications. Submissions are now accepted from any member of the Medieval Association of the Midwest. We welcome your submissions and your membership. PMAM is yet one more benefit of MAM membership.

This volume, like all proceedings volumes, would never have existed without the efforts of Mel Storm, Karen Moranski, and our dedicated editorial readers, all of whom serve pro bono. They all deserve our thanks. Our thanks must also go to the authors, whose papers reflect a high level of scholarship and readability along with new insights on their subjects.

To purchase extra copies of this issue or to join or renew your membership in the Medieval Association of the Midwest, please get in touch with

Robert L. Kindrick
Executive Secretary
The Medieval Association of the Midwest
University Hall
The University of Montana
Missoula, MT 59812

(406) 243-4689
kindrick@selway.umt.edu

Robert L. Kindrick
Executive Secretary