

Dear Professor Oesterle,

Thank you so much for your contributions to the Ohio State Business Law Journal. We very much appreciated your ideas and thoughts regarding the articles selection and your help on the symposium. It was my (and my board's) pleasure to have had the opportunity to work with you.

Best,

May Nakano, EIC 2020-2021

-----

Professor Oesterle is one of a kind. His teaching style, honesty, and willingness to engage with anyone who disagreed with him are things we need more of today. Thank you for your mentorship on the journal and in life! Congratulations on this new chapter. - Clarence Dass, EIC 2009-2010

-----

Professor Oesterle's insight, ingenuity, and personality are forever ingrained in the journal and its members. He had the vision to form the journal and ensure its survival in the competitive academic world, while also providing us with valuable experience and a service to practitioners with insights into developing topics in business law. Professor Oesterle was truly the godfather of the journal.

But more important and lasting is the impact he had on the thousands of students he taught and mentored. We are his legacy. He made an impression on all of us that fundamentally formed us as lawyers, professionals, and people. - Mark Manning, EIC 2010-2011

-----

Thank you, Professor Oesterle. Your passion for business law is contagious and inspired me to pursue a leadership position within the Ohio State Business Law Journal. I appreciate your commitment to ensuring the Ohio State University Moritz College of law provides students with high quality business law instruction and the opportunity to participate in business law scholarship. Your honest feedback provided an excellent platform for scholarly discourse and encouraged my development as a leader. I sincerely enjoyed the time

I spent working with you and learning from you. I will always remember our conversations discussing both business law and life during Zoom office hours in the early days of the pandemic. Thank you for your guidance and leadership of the Journal.

Luke Shaffer '20

OSBLJ EIC, Volume 14

-----

Professor Oesterle,

While I did not have the pleasure of working with you directly during my term as EIC, I am forever grateful for your contribution to the cultivation of the Ohio State Business Law Journal. Your legacy is the voice and space you gave each of us to discuss our passions in business law, commemorated by each published student note.

It was an honor to bring together this festschrift celebrating you and your career with those who you have made a lasting impression on.

Hala Abdel-Jaber

EIC 2021- 2022

-----

Dale, you were invaluable in the early days of the OSBLD, or EBLJ as we were known then. You provided articles, advice, and contacts, and supported us with the law school administration as we were establishing the journal as a quality publication. Please accept a hearty thanks from the class of '08 editorial team. – Derek Heyman, PhD, JD, CPA

-----

Professor Oesterle has made a lasting impact on The Ohio State Business Law Journal and its members since its inception. His passion for business law and his stewardship of the journal has been critical to its success. During my tenure, he provided sage counsel that continues to guide how I approach many aspects of my personal and professional life. It was a pleasure to work with him and I wish him an enjoyable next chapter.

- Jeremy Panno, EIC 2011-2012