

Marvin Weinbaum, scholar-in-residence at the Middle East Institute in Washington D.C. and professor emeritus of political science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, gave a lecture about "The Islamic Dimension of the Insurgencies in Afghanistan and Pakistan," at the Mershon Center on April 29, 2010.

Marvin Weinbaum, scholar-in-residence at the Middle East Institute in Washington DC and professor emeritus of political science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, spoke to a capacity audience about "The Islamic Dimension of the Insurgencies in Afghanistan and Pakistan." His lecture was part of the Islam and Democracy Lecture Series organized by Bill Liddle, professor of political science.

Marvin Weinbaum fielded a number of questions after his lecture about "The Islamic Dimension of the Insurgencies in Afghanistan and Pakistan," which he gave at the Mershon Center as part of the Islam and Democracy lecture series organized by Bill Liddle, professor of political science.

Marvin Weinbaum, scholar-in-residence at the Middle East Institute in Washington D.C. and professor emeritus of political science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, continued conversation with John Mueller, Woody Hayes Chair of National Security Studies, after his lecture at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies.

After giving his lecture, Marvin Weinbaum, scholar-in-residence at the Middle East Institute in Washington D.C. and professor emeritus of political science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, spoke to Bill Liddle's (seated right) honors political science students. Liddle, professor of political science, organized Weinbaum's visit as part of the Islam and Democracy Lecture series that he organizes.

Marvin Weinbaum, scholar-in-residence at the Middle East Institute in Washington D.C. and professor emeritus of political science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, fields a question from a student in Bill Liddle's honors political science course. After delivering his lecture on "The Islamic Dimension of the Insurgencies in Afghanistan and Pakistan," Weinbaum participated in a seminar with students of Professor Bill Liddle. Weinbaum visited the Mershon Center for International Security Studies on April 29, 2010.