SUMMER LANGUAGE STUDY (CONT.)

667. The 15th International Seminar for East European Languages will be held in Eisenstadt, Austria this summer from July 27 to August 16. Instruction will be available in Russian, Serbo-Croatian, and Hungarian; teachers will be native speakers, including some from the USSR and other East European countries. Two years previous study of a language is required. Apply by June 15 to Ostakademie, Josefsplatz 6, A-1010 Wien, Austria.

WANT TO KNOW WHAT YOUR GRANDPARENTS ARE SAYING ABOUT YOU?

668. Take Intensive Polish, taught by Professor Joyce Kolodziej, this summer (June 23 - August 29, 1975) at Ohio State. Classes meet Monday through Friday from 9:00-11:00 a.m. and 12:00-1:00 p.m. Fifteen quarter credit hours. For further information call the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures, (614) 422-6733.

SECONDARY SCHOOL NEWS

669. A note in the latest AATSEEL Newsletter and a report on Russian teaching in the United States soon to appear in print suggest that one reason for the small number of American secondary schools offering Russian is a shortage of available teachers. Not so in Ohio, at least. Although no formal placement listing is being maintained, recent and near-future graduates from The Ohio State University who are certified in Russian (and with secondary areas in French, Spanish, Psychology, English, or German) are in the Columbus area and are looking for teaching jobs in Ohio. The CSEES is eager to learn of certified Slavic-subject, job-seeking graduates or near-graduates from other Ohio institutions; of course we'll appreciate news of any job openings too. Contact Gerard Ervin, at the Slavic Center.

670. For fifty cents, the Educational Services Division of the National Council of Soviet-American Friendship (156 Fifth Avenue, Suite 304, New York, NY, 10010) offers its catalog of rental films. Over 150 available Soviet films are listed by category and are in English (The Country and the People; Education; Science and Technology; Culture and the Arts; Medicine and Public Health; Sports and Physical Education; Agriculture; Cartoons; Historical and Political; Feature Films). All are fully described; many are in color and are less than 50 minutes long; most are recent (within the last 10 years); few cost more than $10 (many at $5 or less) to rent. Language and social studies teachers who want to use films will find this catalog a gold mine.

671. Lest anyone doubt that Russian study, even in this age of détente, still has an image problem, consider the following: Last month the language teachers at a Columbus-area secondary school where Russian is taught were decorating a display window in a school hallway. The flags of France, Germany, and Spain were prominently displayed, but the Soviet flag which had been put in with them had to be removed the first day because of "comments" made by school personnel. "We have seen the enemy, and he is us." -- Pogo.

GRANTS FOR POPULATION RESEARCH

672. The Rockefeller and Ford Foundations jointly announce a world-wide program of support for social science research relevant to the formulation and implementation of population policy. The intent of the program is to generate factors that influence population dynamics and population policy. The program is open to researchers at various points in their career development, including graduate students and other junior scholars, and is particularly interested in receiving proposals from researchers in developing countries. Awards range from $800 to $35,000. Deadline is 7/1/75. For additional information call The Ohio State University Research Foundation, (614) 422-8663.

NDEA FUNDING

673.

Where $14 Million Will Go

Following the Congressional decision not to accept President Ford's FY 1975 rescission recommendation for NDEA Title VI/Fulbright-Hays 102 (b) (6), HEW has been instructed to release funding for these programs in the amount of $14 million. Dr. Robert Leestma, Associate Commissioner for Institutional Development and International Education, USOE, offered assurances that the money will be allocated in the following manner:

- funds will be used for the most critical needs in all program categories; small amounts of additional funds will be available, to the existing 50 foreign language and area studies centers, where justification and need can be demonstrated;
- 14 or 15 additional centers will be funded;
- some additional new undergraduate and graduate programs (as distinct from centers) will be funded;
- approximately 100 additional fellowships will be added;
- there will be an increased level of activity in research and overseas projects.

New competition will be required for the additional foreign language and area studies centers. The decision to fund additional centers on the basis of a national competition was made last fall and staff planning has been in progress since that time on a contingency basis in the event the rescission requested was denied. Guidelines and funding criteria are now in the process of being placed in the Federal Register. Publication is anticipated sometime in April with proposal deadlines probably in late May or early June. Further details will be carried in the next issue of INTERACTION.

Guidelines, as of April 29, 1975, have not appeared in the Federal Register.

AUTHORS' HELP NEEDED

674. The Slavic and Central European Division of the Library of Congress is compiling the 1974 and 1975 volumes of The American Bibliography of Slavic and East European Studies. Books and articles published abroad by North American authors are included. Information on these foreign imprints as well as on doctoral dissertations accepted by U.S. or Canadian universities and colleges is often difficult to obtain. Authors are urged to send pertinent information on their publications in the form of reprints, preprints, or bibliographic descriptions, to the following address: Assistant to the Chief, Slavic and Central European Division, Library of Congress, Washington, DC, 20540.

JOBS AVAILABLE

675. The U.S. Joint Publications Research Service needs experienced translators to work at home on a piecework basis in the following languages: Albanian, Czech, Hebrew/Yiddish, Polish, Serbo-Croatian, and Russian (the last with an emphasis on transportation, electronics, and other industries). Send resume, emphasizing specialized training, technical knowledge, and translation experience to JPRS, 1000 North Glebe Road, Arlington, VA, 22201.

676. The Current Digest of the Soviet Press has an immediate opening for a fulltime Pravda Indexer. This is a unique opportunity to master modern Russian through intensive exposure and hard work under the guidance of skilled translators and editors.

Ideal candidate would be able to speed-read Russian--all subject areas--with comprehension, identify main points, and render them accurately in succinct, lucid English. Less-than-ideal but motivated candidate can acquire these skills under expert guidance.

Salary commensurate with skill but modest range; good fringe benefits.

A minimum two-year commitment is expected.

Resume and particulars to: Robert Ehlers, Editor, Current Digest of the Soviet Press, 2043 Millikin Road, Columbus, Ohio, 43210.

UPCOMING LECTURE AT BOWLING GREEN

677. The Bowling Green State University Russian Studies Program is sponsoring a lecture by R. C. Porter, Soviet Affairs Analyst, U.S. Department of State on Tuesday, May 6, 1975 at 8:00 p.m. in the Ohio Suite of the Bowling Green Union. His topic will be "What's Happened to Détente?" Mr. Porter will be in residence at Bowling Green for two days as part of the State Department's "Scholar Diplomat Exchange Program" and will meet with students interested in government careers in international affairs at 3:00 p.m. Tuesday, May 6, in the Faculty Lounge of the Union. For more information, contact: Professor Robert Hansen, Department of Political Science, (419) 372-0275. (Last-minute arrival - not included in front-page calendar).
