The University of Illinois

Land-Grant Center of Higher Learning

THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS was opened March 2, 1868, under provisions of the Land-Grant College Act signed by Abraham Lincoln which gave public lands to the states for educational facilities for the many, rather than the favored few.

From its beginning, with three faculty members and 50 students in a secondhand building, the University has become a leader in a period in which state universities have assumed great significance.

In educational areas, the university offers undergraduate, professional and graduate training in virtually every field of human interest. Eighty-eight per cent of its students come from within the state. Every county is represented.

University research touches a multitude of areas, adding to the world's store of knowledge, and by its practical application offering benefits to all people.

Special services help farmers and businessmen, homemakers, schools, professions, industries, and communities all over the state. Publications and broadcasts provide information about many subjects.

Remarkable growth marks every page of the university's history. From one building and a handful of students, the University of Illinois has grown until today it has more than 127 major and 600 other buildings, plant and equipment valued at more than $194,000,000, and the sixth largest student body in the nation.

But the individual student is not lost in numbers. Average size of classes is 24. Of all classes, 93 per cent have fewer than 40 students, 83 per cent less than 30.

Well over half the students earn part of their expenses during college years. Many are assisted by scholarships. The University was founded with the idea of providing educational opportunity for all who could benefit by it.

Size of the university provides opportunity for students to fit education and extra-curricular activities to their needs, abilities, and interests. Such collegiate observances as Homecoming, Dad's Day, and Campus Mother's Day originated on the Illinois campus.

Library collections are largest of any state university and fifth among all the nation's libraries. Similarly outstanding are educational and research facilities in many other areas.

Teaching, research, and service activities interlock. Each benefits from the others. Not only does the University pass on knowledge, it adds to it. Teachers bring to their students the inquiring spirit of research and scholarship.

Main campus of the University of Illinois is at Urbana-Champaign, 125 miles south of Chicago. In Chicago are the university's health sciences units—colleges, hospitals, and clinics—and also the Chicago Undergraduate Division, housed temporarily on Navy Pier.

President of the University since 1955 is Dr. David Dodds Henry. Of its eleven trustees, nine are elected directly by the citizens of the state. Ex-officio members of the Board are the Governor of the State and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Alumni and former students of the University total more than 305,000.

The Land-Grant Idea Serves Ohio

A CENTURY ago, in the second year of the Civil War, a new type of higher education—education for the masses—was born in this country. This came about when, on July 2, 1862, Abraham Lincoln signed the Morrill Act which provided for grants of public land to the states in proportion to population.

From the sale of this land, the states were to finance colleges whose "leading object" was to "teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts . . . in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life." Scientific and classical studies were not excluded. Each state was free to write its own charter for one or more such colleges, as its legislature might decide. These new colleges came to be known as Land-Grant institutions. Today, 68 of them are serving their states, the nation, and the world in an astonishing variety of ways.

In 1861 the opportunity for higher education in this country was limited chiefly to the privileged few. Today, thanks largely to the Land-Grant colleges and universities, the old exclusiveness is gone. This educational revolution was as far reaching in its effects as the industrial and economic revolution itself. The new Land-Grant Colleges emphasized professional or specialized education, seeking to meet the needs of a people just learning how to apply the discoveries of science and new technology to daily life.

A century ago the new states and territories lacked the resources to create their own systems of higher education. The Land-Grant Act provided for a grant of federal land to each state amounting to 30,000 acres for each member of Congress from that state. This land was to be sold—the going price was then about $1.25 an acre—and the income used to endow and support at least one college in each state.

Justin S. Morrill of Vermont, who served nearly 50 years in Congress, led the fight for the necessary federal legislation. More than five years after the struggle for adoption of the plan had begun, the Land-Grant college bill, called the Morrill Act, was signed into law by President Lincoln.

Ohio was slow to take full advantage of the Morrill Act. Governor David Tod laid the offer before the State Board of Agriculture in November, 1862. On February 9, 1864, the General Assembly formally accepted the land-grant offer contained in the Morrill Act, but it was another six years before it took steps to organize such a college. Another three years elapsed before the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical College, now The Ohio State University, opened its doors in 1873.

Under the terms of the Morrill Act, Ohio received 630,000 acres in land scrip, exceeded only by New York and Pennsylvania. Yet its land scrip yielded only $340,906, or an average of only 54 cents an acre compared with the established government price of $1.25 an acre.

Four counties competed actively for the location of the college—Champaign, Clark, Franklin and Montgomery. Much interest was shown in Columbus regarding the matter and a special election was called on a proposal to donate funds to locate the college in Franklin County. The proposal carried. On August 30, 1870, the Franklin County commissioners formally made an offer of $300,000 to the trustees. After the trustees inspected various possible sites, they voted on September 21, 1870, to accept the proposition of Franklin County.

Ten departments were projected when the plans for the future University were laid out in January 1871. Ninety years later there are more than 80 departments of instruction. The University has grown to include 10 colleges and the Graduate School, plus eight professional schools, special bureaus, the lake laboratory, the Research Foundation, and other special agencies.

The Fighting Illini

WALKER, THURMAN—Had earned first team berth in drills prior to 1960 season but was injured on the first play of the opening game. The dislocated elbow allowed him to acquire only fifteen minutes' playing time, but he was awarded a letter. Probably the best offensive end at Illinois since

Al Wheatland

Rich Kreitling. One of the fastest men on the squad. Caught three passes for 99 yards in his brief appearances last year. Looked very good in spring practice game. He was an outstanding basketball player as a prep and was named to intramural all-star team last year. Played on two conference championship teams in high school and once scored five touchdowns in one game.

HEMBROUGH, GARY—Played fullback and center as prep and Illinois freshman and has now earned two letters as an end. Good blocker who lacks speed to become outstanding pass receiver. Very fine defensive corner man. Hip injury suffered in Minnesota game kept him out of two games last year, but he's completely recovered. Compiled a "straight A" average in physical education last semester. Won 11 letters as prep at Roodhouse, Ill., four in football and track, and three in basketball.

YUKEVICH, STAN—Veteran center will battle for regular position again this year. Has improved his ball handling and is a good blocker. Very fierce tackler who's quite agile. Was honorary freshman captain in 1958. Played 131 minutes at center last year. Lettered in track as well as football as prep.

LOLLINO, FRANK—Shifted from guard to tackle after sophomore season in which he demonstrated great promise. He is a fine blocker with good speed and his defensive play is still improving. Loves contact and will look for it. Was a starter in the spring intrasquad game. Would like to coach after graduation.

WHEATLAND, AL—Shifted to halfback from fullback where last year he gave a spectacular performance in Indiana game before being injured. He carried five consecutive times for 35 yards before leaving the game with a separated shoulder. He was granted an additional year's eligibility in a special ruling by the Big Ten. He's a good blocker and runner and probably will be used as linebacker or in defensive backfield. His actual first name is John—Alan is his middle name. Lettered in basketball, golf, and track as well as football as a prep. He's a fine golfer; competed in 1961 state amateur meet.

MURPHY, PAT—Only tackle on squad with any appreciable experience. Lettered last year and played in every game—a major accomplishment since he is constantly bothered by knee trouble. His knees keep him on the sidelines so much that he lists the whirlpool, rather than tackle, as his position. Missed spring practice because of knee injury. Studying mechanical engineering. Earned four letters in football as prep.

Pat Murphy

ANDERSON, NEAL—Back after missing a year of school. Very fast and ruggedly built. Better on defense than offense because of his ability to avoid blockers. Good student; studying physical education. High school teammate of Illini halfback Al Wheatland. He lettered four times in swimming, two in football and track, and one in wrestling as a prep.

McCULLUM, THOMAS—Interesting prospect, may be surprise among newcomers to backfield. Could supply badly needed speed. One of the fastest men on the squad. Was an outstanding 440 and 880 runner in high school. Won two letters in football and two in track as prep at Cohen High School in New Orleans.

SUMMERS, MIKE—Counted on heavily since shift of Al Wheatland to halfback. A real hard worker who's interested in improving himself. A good runner who's hard to bring down. He was starting fullback for White team in spring game. A fine student in elementary education. Played high school football under former Illini Murney Lazier.

BROWN, GARY—Gary is the second Brown in two years to captain Illini but he is no relation to last year's captain, Bill Brown. Played tackle in high school and is being shifted back after playing guard in first two seasons at Illinois. He is agile and has good speed for a lineman. Played in every game as a sophomore but knee injury kept him out of two games last year. Compiled fine grade average in college of physical education and wants to be an athletic director after graduation. Lettered in track and wrestling as well as football at Moline, Ill.

TELIAFERRO, MIKE—May carry most of the offensive duties because of his outstanding passing ability. Is especially proficient at long passing game. Has keen football sense and is intelligent. Could be used as punter. Although he graduated from Wheaton High School, he gained most of his athletic reputation in Dallas, Texas, where he led Jesuit High School to a state title his junior year. A good student in physical education and hopes to coach after graduation. Pronounces his last name as if it were "Tolliver."

Co-Captains of The Buckeyes

Tom Perdue, left, and Mike Ingram, are the 1961 co-captains of the Ohio State University football team. Perdue, who was a high school star at Huntington, W. Va., now lives in Wellston, O. Perdue, who also is a baseball outfielder, is a defensive end. Ingram, who led the squad last year in playing time with 334 minutes, is a native of Bellaire, O. One of the shortest players in the Big Ten at 5 feet, nine inches, Ingram is a standout line-backer and also plays with the offensive unit. Both Perdue and Ingram are seniors. Each is considered an all-American prospect.

Big Ten Enters New Era

WHAT'S in a name? Intercollegiate Conference of Faculty Representatives . . . Western Conference . . . Big Ten.

All three represent the most mature, the oldest in continuous operation and the most versatile athletic conference on the American collegiate scene.

The Big Ten, conceived in a Chicago hotel room in 1895 by seven Midwestern university presidents and organized by faculty representatives of these schools the following year, enters its 66th season with its most popular showcase sport—football.

However, for only the third time since its inception, the season has opened under the guiding administration of a new commissioner—William R. Reed.

Bill Reed moved into the commissioner's office as one of the most widely known and experienced intercollegiate athletic administrators in the nation. He now sits in the chair occupied for the past 16 years by the popular Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson.

Reed first joined the conference staff in 1939 when he originated the Western Conference Service Bureau, the public relations arm of the conference, under the Big Ten's first commissioner—Major John L. Griffith. Previously he had been engaged in newspaper and athletic publicity work at the University of Michigan, where he was graduated with an A.B. in 1936.

On leave of absence from the conference, Reed entered naval service in 1942 as an ensign. After reaching the rank of lieutenant, he returned to the conference offices in the fall of 1945.

Reed organized the first central office of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in 1946 under Wilson, who was also NCAA secretary-treasurer. He acted as both conference service bureau director and executive assistant to the NCAA officers.

In 1947 Reed resigned to become administrative assistant to United States Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan. He left that position in the fall of 1951 to return to the conference as assistant commissioner.

Reed is a charter member of the American Football Writers' Association and drafted its constitution. He has served on several NCAA committees and presently is chairman of the NCAA legislative committee.

Assisting Reed in the conference office are John Dewey and Kay Schultz.

Dewey, a 1951 graduate of Northwestern, serves as assistant to the commissioner. He joined the conference staff in 1957 to fill the then new position of examiner. On Reed's election as commissioner, Dewey attained his present position, retaining his functions as examiner but with special responsibilities for the administration of the Big Ten financial aid program.

Dewey's examiner duties include visits to the campus of each member institution, at least annually, to examine its conduct of athletics.

Schultz came to the conference as service bureau director when Reed became commissioner. He previously had worked as a public relations assistant for the American Bowling Congress. While in school at the University of Wisconsin, where he was graduated in 1957, he worked as an assistant for the Wisconsin Sports News Service.

A new era for the Big Ten unfolds, quietly and unobtrusively administrating intercollegiate athletics on the conference level for the 10 most well known universities in the nation.

BIG TEN COMPETITION . . .

Football competition in the Big Ten is fierce. This conference perennially produces the nation's strongest football teams. It's keen competition that allows Central Ohioans to witness the best college football here in Columbus each year. When we make our weekly food purchases we are privileged to choose from many of the nation's finest food markets. The food markets in Columbus rank among the leaders in the nation. The same competition that produces great football teams at Ohio State also forces each super market to offer higher quality food products at more competitive prices. Super Duper Markets welcome this keen competition and pledge to their customers and competitors to continue to further the high standing of Central Ohio food markets. The public approval of Super Duper's premium food products at competitive prices has enabled Super Duper Markets to grow from one store to seventeen stores in just six years. Yes, competition benefits us all.
